NEW DIRECTOR FOR MEXICAN MUSEUM

The Mexican Museum recently announced the appointment of a new executive director and the addition of five community and business leaders to the Board of Trustees. According to Board President Arabella Martinez, "These are significant changes that reflect our commitment to the Museum as a major cultural institution in San Francisco."

Marie Acosta-Colon joins the Museum as the new executive director. She plans to continue the projects outlined in the Museum's Five-Year Long Range Plan. "These plans recently received a boost with the award of two major grants that will enable the Museum to accelerate its projected growth time-line," said Acosta-Colon. "As a result, we're now initiating programs that will help us to expand our art collection, and we're also hiring much-needed staff."

Acosta-Colon previously served as special assistant to the director of the California Arts Council. She advised the CAC on policy and programs relating to the California multicultural arts community, and additional funding strategies. In 1987, she coordinated "California Dialogue II," a statewide gathering of multicultural arts organizations sponsored by the CAC.

A widely respected advocate for the arts, she has served on numerous local, state and national panels. She is currently an on-site evaluator for the National Endowment for the Arts, and a member of the National Task Force on Presenting and Touring in the United States. She has also designed, implemented and managed a statewide technical assistance program for multicultural arts organizations in California.

Her interest in the arts extends to the theater. She is an advisory board member for Pickle Family Circus, and a long-time collective member and former general manager of the Tony award-winning San Francisco Mime Troupe.

The five new Board members named at the Museum's June meeting are Hovey Clark, Daniel F. Duran, Albert F. Moreno, Maria de Regalado, and Ernest de Soto.

The Mexican Museum is the first American institution of its kind devoted solely to Mexican and Mexican American art. Founded in 1975 by Mexican American artist Peter Rodriguez, the Museum's mission is to collect, conserve, exhibit and interpret works of art created by Mexican peoples from antiquity to the present, in order to promote awareness, understanding and appreciation of their unique artistic and cultural contributions.

The Museum presents both In-Museum and Outreach Programs to enhance and support their goals.

Docent tours are presented Monday through Friday from 10am to 3pm, by appointment. Tours are adapted to the needs of adult and student audiences, and can be conducted in English, Spanish, or bilingually.

Art and craft workshops, designed around the permanent collection and special exhibitions, are available as an enhancement to the docent tour.

Marie Acosta-Colon joins The Mexican Museum as the new executive director.

Special events are presented in conjunction with exhibitions related to important Mexican and Mexican American historical and cultural festivals and holidays, such as Cinco de Mayo and Day of the Dead. Special-interest exhibitions are accompanied by artist round-table discussions, technique demonstrations, and performances.

Internships are offered to college and university students who would like to acquire experience in museum work or with school-age children.

Teacher workshops are designed to orient teachers to the Museum's collection and to provide them with follow-up projects. Workshops can be conducted in the Museum or at the school site.

Outreach workshops related to Mexican art and culture are conducted in school and community sites by appointment. Three different programs are available, on clay, paper, and dance. The workshops also include a slide lecture and accompanying mini-exhibition of folk art objects corresponding to the theme.

Traveling Trunks are filled with touchable artifacts, information, activity pamphlets, teacher's guides and other study materials. Themes available are Mexican Paper Folk Art, A Pre-Hispanic Tomb, Mexican Ceramics, and Mexican Folk Toys.

Learning packets containing slides and cassettes are available for two-week loan periods, on themes including San Francisco Mission District Murals, Signs and Symbols in Mexican Art, The Ritual Masks of Mexico, and Mexican Paper Folk Art.

Currently on exhibit at The Mexican Museum are "Obras en Papel: Works on Paper," and "Mascaras: Reflections of a Culture." See listing inside under Galleries for details.

The Mexican Museum, and its gift shop, La Tienda, are open Wednesday through Sunday from noon to 5pm. On the first Wednesday of each month, hours are noon to 8pm, and admission is free. General admission is $2, seniors and student $1, and members are ad-mitted free. For information on exhibits, membership, or fees and schedules for special programs, call the Museum's administrative offices at 441-0445.

LEADERSHIP COUNCIL AWARD TO MARC KASKY

Fort Mason Center's executive director, Marc Kasky, was presented with the Leadership San Francisco Council's 1989 award at the Celebration of Leadership Dinner on June 23.

Sponsored by the Leadership San Francisco Council and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, this annual event honors the contributions to the community of one LSF graduate and one leader from the community at large. Marc completed the program for 1985-86, and was selected as the LSF leader. Leroy Looper, executive director of Reality House West, was chosen as outstanding civic leader.

A diverse group of men and women from both the public and private sectors are selected to take part in Leadership San Francisco. The purpose of the program is to develop long-term leaders who are knowledgeable about the city and committed to its well-being. It enables participants to increase their understanding of the complex environment in which we live and work. Participants examine different leadership styles, and how they - as individuals, corporate and community leaders - can respond effectively to community concerns.

The program begins with a two-day retreat each September, then continues with ten monthly day-long sessions, September through June. Each session focuses on a general topic, with specific subjects discussed by experts in each field.

Session topics include such subjects as the Bay Area economy, and how it relates to San Francisco; transportation, housing, and jobs; health and social issues; education; San Francisco government; the nonprofit sector; and power, politics and the media.

"In addition to the personal pleasure I feel at being honored by the Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Program," said Marc, "this award is another indication of the high esteem that the San Francisco community has for Fort Mason Center."

Proceeds from the awards dinner each year are used to establish scholarships for future leadership classes and to sponsor continuing educational programs through the LSF Council.

For information about Leadership San Francisco, contact the Chamber of Commerce at 392-4520, extension 826.

MARITIME ARTS AND ARTISANS

The San Francisco Craft and Folk Art Museum presents a one-day maritime festival on July 8, celebrating their current exhibition, "Maritime Arts and Artisans."

The day starts with a roundtable discussion on "Our Maritime Heritage: Cultural Contributions Around the Bay" from 10am to noon in the Firehouse at Fort Mason. Participants are Robert Schwendinger, founder and director of the Maritime Humanities Center; Archie Green, longtime seaman and internationally renowned folklorist; Charles Wollenberg, noted California historian; Carole Austin, curator of the exhibition; and J. Weldon Smith, director of the Museum.

The afternoon is devoted to nautical crafts. Oscar Toback, sailmaker, Dominic Ghio, net weaver, Tom Fordham, model shipbuilder, and Rick Anderson, shipwright, demonstrate their crafts and informally speak with visitors, from 1 to 4pm. They can be seen on the elevated walkway adjacent to Building B, across from the Museum in Building A.

Admission to these events is free, thanks to generous funding by the California Council for the Humanities and the Fleishhacker Foundation.

The exhibition opens July 2, and continues through August 27. See listing inside under Galleries for details.

For information about the festival, the exhibition, or the San Francisco Craft and Folk Art Gallery, call 775-0990.
